

CaseAce Products Introduces the ultimate LAN gaming harness

New GearGrip-Pro computer harness lets LAN gamers go to the party in style.

QUAKECON 2000, Mesquite TX.—August 3, 2000—Today CaseAce Products (www.caseace.com) formally introduced the GearGrip™-Pro computer-carrying harness to one of the largest gatherings of LAN gamers at QUAKECON 2000. The GearGrip-Pro computer-carrying harness provides everything someone needs to easily carry a desktop computer. This is often a troubling situation for a LAN gamer who wants to transport their computer to a friend's house for a few rounds of computer gaming or to a formal LAN gaming event.

The GearGrip-Pro harness attaches around a desktop computer case and provides a handle and shoulder strap for easy transport. What sets this harness apart is that it also provides pockets for the keyboard and mouse in addition to two adjustable CableGrip™ straps to easily carry other items such as LAN cables, power cables and headphones. It is so convenient that the keyboard and mouse don't even need to be unplugged which makes transport and setup a breeze.

The GearGrip-Pro is also built like a tank with a stylish attention to detail. The wide 2" straps and comfortable soft-grip handle make sure that the computer in its grasp is secure while the cool looking hardware and mesh fabric pockets make sure the computer arrives in style. While specifically designed with the computer gamer in mind, the GearGrip-Pro's utility make it the perfect solution for anyone needing to transport their computer around town such as technicians and sales people.
